ART.2 – GUIDELINES

Participation in the "Dolomiti Ultra Trail" leads to the acceptance, in all its parts and without reservation, of this regulation. By registering, each competitor undertakes to respect this regulation and free the organizers from any civil or criminal liability for any accident or accident, for damages to persons or things deriving from or caused by them, which may occur during the event called "Dolomiti Ultra Trail" which will take place in accordance with this regulation, any modifications and warnings that will be published on the website www.dolomitiultra.com. Fundamental principles:

- The race is reserved for teams of 3 members at most. Should one of the team's competitors not be able to continue the entire team will be withdrawn if only one competitor is able to continue. In a team consisting of two competitors, the abandonment of one automatically involves the withdrawal of the team, in a team composed of three competitors the abandonment of one does not compromise the ability of the other two competitors to continue;
- The members of the teams must start and arrive together in each single stage, the arrival of team members individually at different times is not allowed, otherwise the team will be disqualified;
- The overnight stay in the base camp is mandatory, failure to comply with this rule will result in disqualification of the team;

The trail world not only unites people who love sports, but above all respect nature and people. By subscribing to the "Dolomiti Ultra Trail" it is required to run in respect of the code of ethics of the trailers around the world. This involves:

- do not throw any type of waste on the ground, which could be extremely harmful to the environment;

- respect the other trailers, assisting those who may be in difficulty;
- respect the volunteers whose intent is the same as yours: participate for the pleasure of being there.
